NORTH VIETNAMConstruction of Military Facilities in Southern Panhandle

A military complex with more than 100 buildings is being constructed near the port of Quang Khe, a major coastal transshipment facility. The complex is situated on Route 107 about 4.5 nm southwest of Quang Khe and is within 8 nm of Route 137, a major infiltration route into Laos (see Figure 2).

Construction began sometime after late [ ] photography shows 115 buildings and 35 building foundations in three separate road-served areas. The facilities consist of storage buildings, billets, mess halls, probable vehicle maintenance sheds, truck parks, two driver training areas and trenches. Sixty-one trucks were parked in the area on [ ] 25X1D

This is the second location in the Southern Panhandle at which evidence of large-scale military construction has been identified in the past month. A probable military complex under construction 13 nm to the southeast was reported in the IAS Notes of [ ] 25X1D
